History's Greatest Buildings

2561 BC - The Pyramids of Giza are constructed in Egypt. While initially believed to be constructed by slaves, conspiracy theorists later successfully attributed the pyramids to Aliens.

206 BC - The Great Wall of China is built. While known as one of the few manmade structures visible from space, it actually isn't. This is rather unfortunate, as the Chinese were hoping to use it to contact the Pyramid Aliens for reasons since lost to time.

537 AD - The Hagia Sophia is completed in Byzantium Constantinople Istanbul Constantinople Istanbul MAKE UP YOUR MIND ALREADY!

1345 AD - The cathedral of Notre Dame is completed in Paris. While initially known as a home for orphaned hunchbacked bell-ringers, the site later gains fame for winning the 1580-1909 college football titles. Unfortunately, this run ends the following year when the NCAA is actually founded.

1961 AD - The Space Needle is completed in Seattle Washington. While a hit at the World Fair the following year, it apparently fails in it’s goal to contact the Aliens and order more pyramids.

2013 AD - Harvard renovates Quincy House in an effort to get all the mistakes out of their system before moving on to Leverett.

2014 AD - McKinlock Hall is renovated. The Pyramid Aliens, orbiting Earth after getting the message from the Space Needle, weep upon seeing it and return to their home world, knowing nothing they can build will ever compare.
Swing Man Interview

with Alex “PK” Kiam, Fairfax, 2nd Floor

Which one is Fairfax again?
A: The one above JP Licks.

How has living above JP Licks affected your dietary goals?
A: I have achieved my dietary goal of going to JP licks everyday… just kidding. Actually, I’ve kinda just given up. I would have given up eventually anyway, but this made just made it easier.”

Where do you eat? Are you tempted by the proximity of the Quincy D hall?
A: Never. Lev is where it’s at. Quincy’s prettier on the outside, but Lev is prettier on the inside.

We all know that one of Fairfax’s most attractive is its location by the yard. How late can you get up for your 10 o’clocks?
A: I’ve woken up as late as 8:30 and still almost made it for a 10 o’clock class.

Can you explain that?
A: The first hour and 20 minutes is consistently pressing snooze. The last 17 minutes is teeth brushing, sprinting out the door, realizing I forgot the bookbag, running back, then sprinting to class.

We’ve all been there. What’s your least favorite thing about Fairfax?
A: Being the shortest person on my floor, despite being 5’11.”

Favorite part?
A: The comforting thought that a homeless man could climb up the fire escape and into my room.

---

Fairfax Fun Fact

From Louise Eisenach, Ali Monfre, and Lismelia Vargas

“The basement connects to Gnomon Copy. Sometimes the door is open and you can walk right in…”

---

Riddle

What is the only word in the dictionary that ends in “-mt”?