On beyond Eeyore.

Despite their mullish appearance and seeming role as background for a standard war-zone photo-op, the donkey has played a pivotal role in the modern war on terror, whether on behalf of American troops or as weapons carriers for the other side. Several notable commentators on the phenomenon, from PETA to colonels, have made reference to this phenomenon:

"Every donkey in Baghdad is suddenly under suspicion as U.S. President George W. Bush wages a global war on terror." - CNN.com, Nov. 24, 2003

"It is also said to move its (Hizballah) missiles and weapons on donkeys trained to deliver their payloads to launch sites and storage facilities without a human guide. Israeli officials say the only way to knock out the threat would be to kill every donkey in the country." - Wall Street Journal, Aug. 2006

"We have received many calls and letters from people shocked at the bombing in Jerusalem on January 26 in which a donkey, laden with explosives, was intentionally blown up." - peta.org, PETA letter to President Yasser Arafat, Feb. 3, 2003

"With all the smart bombs and the modern stuff in war nowadays, this is the best way for us to resupply our troops there," said Lt. Col. Jim Donnellan. "It's also much cheaper for the U.S. taxpayer for us to rent the donkeys than for everything to be air-dropped." - The Associated Press, Aug. 13, 2005

Recently, a group known as 'Safe Haven for Donkeys in the Holy Land' (SHADAH) has begun to care for abandoned conscripted Donkeys.

Ku Klux Klan Faces Hebrews Labor Day

The Ku Klux Klan and Hebrew All-Star ninth will provide local sandlot baseball fans with action Labor day when they clash on the Arlington Horse Show Grounds diamond at 3 o’clock. The Klansmen originally booked the Raltos, but when that team was not sure of mustering a full club, due to the holiday, the All-Stars were substituted. Both teams have fine records.

The following players, who will represent the Hebrews, will meet at the Jewish community center Monday at 1 o’clock: Nate Sauber, Povich, Myers, Lipkin, Flaherty, J. Sauber, Willie Wolf, Milwite, Jaffe, Gleichner, H. Sauber, Sam Simon and “Ikey” Dreyfus.

Shopping weeks: More than meets the eye

Research conducted by psychologist David Smith in 1999 revealed that supermarket frequenters increasingly use the contents of other peoples’ carts to assess their romantic potential. ~11% of singles under 25 use such “love-coding”:
• Asparagus: “I am a sensual lover who loves exotic holidays”
• Bananas: “Life is hectic but I love it”
• Brussels Sprouts: “I am down to earth and enjoy a stable lifestyle”
• Chocolate fudge cake: “Lets have a wild time doing whatever pleases us”
• Cocktail cherries: “I am rather shallow and pretentious”
• Cookery books: “I am domestic and want to look after someone”
• Fish sticks: “I am unadventurous in bed”
• Pasta: “I am passionate and love romantic dinners for two”
• Percolated coffee: “I am decisive and like to be in control”
• Stir-fried vegetables: “I love to experiment”
• Tropical fruits: “I am exotic and passionate”

Labor Day HOLIDAY: Mon, 9/7
