TIMELY SPRING BREAK TIPS

Editor's Note: Due to a mix-up between our writers, there was confusion with regards to our publishing schedule. We intended to run this article on Spring Break tips before spring break. Unfortunately, we can't go back and get it to you in a timely fashion. What we can do is get it to you now and try and apply it into your daily lives back at school. So without further ado, here our Hare Today's Timely Spring Break Tips.

Wear a lot of sunscreen while tanning to avoid lasting skin damage.
Well, this is generally good advice, but I don't know we're going to have any sunbathing in Cambridge for a while. But you know, those classroom fluorescent lights can be pretty harsh. Maybe slather on some sunscreen to prevent any burns from being under those too long. As an added bonus, the overwhelming stench of sunscreen might make you think you're back at the beach!

When traveling abroad, make sure you know a few sentences in the local languages.
Hub, well, this would have been good to say before hand. But you know, people also take foreign language classes at Harvard. It would be good to make sure that you know a few sentences at least in that before any midterms or exams. Okay, maybe more than a few sentences.

If you’re skiing, make sure to bundle up to avoid problems like frostbite.
Oh hey, this one still applies to Cambridge.

If you’re taking a long trip, bring work with you to do on the bus/train/plane. It’ll help pass the time and keep you from feeling overwhelmed when you get back.
Guess it’s too late to help you here. You can take late days, right?

Get extra sleep ahead of time to help prevent jet lag.
Whoops, this one was also sort of important. Well, now that you’re back, just sleep through your 9 or 10 AM class. You can probably make it up later or something.

Take plenty of pictures! They make for great souvenirs.
You know, this would work well in conjunction with the last tip. Take pictures of the board in your 9/10 AM, then fall asleep.

Make sure to manage alcohol consumption responsibly.
Hmm… Nope, no idea how this one would apply on a college campus. Sorry.
WINTER’S COLD HEART UNMOVED BY STUDENT PLEAS

In a recent press release to the assembled colleges and universities in the greater Boston area, Winter re-emphasized its plans to continue to pummel the struggling metropolis with weeks of snow and bitter, bitter wind.

“I’ve worked tirelessly for months to establish a stable, freezing environment the Boston area,” Winter remarked in response to a question from Lowell-area weather man Puffin McStuffenough. “There is no stopping me now. There is no escape. You will know me, humans!”

In Harvard Square, students assembled to make their voices heard, chanting pro-spring siren songs in unison through scarves and ski masks. One protestor, Sherry Wine, struggled to keep chanting through the wind. “I’m not sure how much longer we can keep this up,” she said to the Hare Today between gusts of wind on Dunster Street. “I’ve forgotten what’s it like to feel my ears at all.”

For its part, Winter has showed remarkable resolve this season, stressing its commitment to the multiple weather phenomena coalition’s efforts in the northeast. “I have snow. I have ice. I have slush. I have wind. I have rain that feels way too cold to be rain. We. Will. Prevail.”

Winter’s press conference, staged on a U.S. navy aircraft carrier in front of a large “Mission Accomplished” banner, ended with one final commitment from the season: “I’m blocking up your windows. I’m icing your roads up. Hide your kids, hide your wife!”

MYSTERY MOVIE QUOTE:

“You think I’m an ignorant savage and you’ve been so many places/I guess it must be so...”

Gremlins

LAST WEEK’S ANSWER:

“First of all, keep him out of the light, he hates bright light, especially sunlight, it’ll kill him.”

LEV IMS

Soccer
Thursday 26th 7pm vs. Winthrop

B Volleyball
Thursday 26th 9pm vs. Mather

Softball
Monday 30th 7pm vs. Cabot

Graphics by: Crystal Yen