Leverett Students Assume Football Success

The Harvard Crimson football team has won so much lately that many students have begun to simply assume the football team wins their games by double-digit margins. “When I’m hanging out with friends on a Saturday night, and they ask me how the football team did today, I just say they won by three touchdowns. I’m usually right,” says Leverett junior Stephanie O’Stephans ’18. “I mean, we all have seen how much better they are than their competition, it almost becomes a game for myself trying to guess the actual margin of victory.”

Leverett students refuse to take Harvard football’s success for granted, however, especially in the run up to the biggest game of the year. “We have won for nine years in a row now, but every year I get kind of nervous,” says Leverett senior Joseph Joesmith ’17. “One never gets used to winning: winning is always a good thing and one needs to stay hungry for it, so when I go watch the football team I assume they have the same feelings as I do.” Leverett students have expressed excitement at the prospect of watching a tenth consecutive victory over Yale this year, and they look forward to the Hare Today’s commentary on The Game in the week leading up to its play.

McKinlock Hall Fields Questions About Construction Noise from Winthrop

HT: “Thank you, Mckinlock, for joining us with the HT. Does it annoy you sometimes that they are working on Winthrop right next door?”

McKinlock: “Sometimes, yes, but I know it’s something every building goes through in its life so I don’t really want to complain. I know I went through the same renovation process 2-3 years ago, and I think Quincy handled it very well.

HT: “Did Quincy handle it well, though? We have reports of some high tensions running between residents in Stone Hall and Mckinlock.”

McKinlock: “It’s really hard, first, to put up with the construction noise starting early in the morning every weekday for months. Sometimes my students get pushed to their limits as they have papers and everything else to do, and they just want some sleep. But I know everyone involved is mature enough to get through this necessary process so Winthrop can look as good as Quincy and I do.”

HT: “Was Winthrop that ugly?”

McKinlock: “No, not really. It’s just something you notice, you know? It’s like having a group of three people, one of whom didn’t shower. They don’t stand out that much, but if you look around for long enough you will notice something is different. I think Winthrop will fit in much better when the renovations are completed.”
